

I do not think that the FCC should pass a law that would lessen Indiana's telephone Privacy law. Indiana's laws has really cut down on the amount of calls I have gotten. I can answer my phone and not have to worry about it being a telemarketer. The calls I recieve have dropped from about twenty a day to about two a week. So I believe it would be a very bad idea to do anything less then Indiana's law is already doing for me.
